BACKGROUND

Educational assessment is an important part for improving the quality of education. The result of assessments is valuable information for teachers in improving the quality of teaching-learning processes. Assessment can be carried for the purpose of learning, as learning, and of learning. Assessment can be conducted as classroom assessment, school assessment, and national assessment. There are many research findings in developing the appropriate assessment method that has an impact on the quality of teaching and learning processes in the classroom, and the quality of education could be expected to improve

Assessment can be used to describe students' competencies as a result of their study, their motivation, teachers' competencies, and teachers' motivation. Each school, region, even nation has a unique strategy in improving the student's competency. The conference would like to invite researchers who did research in educational assessment or evaluation. The method for student assessment or student evaluation has much been developed. Therefore we are inviting experts in students' assessment from Australia and Hongkong.

Related to the global competition, the expected main advantage from assessment is to improve students' performance. It is certainly not easy to conduct assessment that can enhance attitude, knowledge, and skill of students. Those reasons motivate us to carry this conference. Experts will explain the latest development in educational assessment, and participants of the conference will share experiences about methods, impacts, and tools of assessment that can improve students' performance.
